Eliminating Allergies
Quick, permanent relief from a long list of stubborn complaints, including high blood pressure, relative sterility and sexual frigidity, is often obtained by eliminating allergic foods, "house dust" or smoke. Successful diagnosis and treatment of numerous such afflictions, inability to nurse the baby, painful menstruation, asthma, epilepsy, migraine, eczema, from which an assorted 80 to 90 per cent of the white American population suffers, is described by Dr. Alan Johnston of Plainfield, Indana, and Dr. Arthur F. Coca, internationally famous allergist and former Clinical Professor of Medicine at Columbia University. A tell-tale speed-up of heart and pulse occurs within an hour or two after a patient eats or breathes a substance to which he is allergic —a food, dust or smoke. This is the basis of Dr. Coca's therapy, since it provides, he says, an almost infallible indicator of the material or materials which provoke allergic irritations.

Seafood Shipping
Shipment of live seafood, including lobsters and shrimp, to any part of the country is now possible. Living seafood packages with a transparent plastic film which allows the entrance of oxygen to just the right extent, permits lobsters to live inside the sealed containers. The lobsters are packed in layers of seaweed, and the whole container is refrigerated. This tremendous expansion of the market for seafoods depends on the ability of the plastic films to transmit oxygen in the proper amounts and also to withstand wet conditions of service

Desire to Live Saves Traveler Buried in Slide

DENVER, Colo. — Robert F. Ray, a 37 year old Grand Junction, Colo., lumberman enjoys the questionable distinction of having been buried beneath tons of snow, trees and rocks in subzero weather—and living to tell about it.

Ray was driving along United States highway 6 west of Denver late one night when a huge tumbling mass hurtled his car over a 40 foot cliff and buried it under eight feet of snow, timbers and boulders. Knocked unconscious by the impact, he also suffered five broken ribs, a fractured shoulder blade, and multiple cuts and bruises.

Everything Black
Exactly how long he was trapped in the crushed automobile he doesn't know for sure. When he first regained his senses, "I thought I was in bed—just waking up. Everything was black."

Feeling around in the wrecked interior of the 1947 sedan, Ray discovered that he was wedged under the steering wheel. His first thought was "how I was going to kill myself so that I wouldn't suffer. I didn't have a gun or a knife."

Urge to Live
But that thought soon gave way. he explained, to an overpowering urge to live that gave him superhuman strength.

He jerked himself free of the smashed steering wheel and wrecked front seat and started kicking the remaining glass out of the broken windshield.

There was hardly enough room to crawl out, but he clawed at the snow with his bare hands, pulling it back into the car while edging himself through the windshield opening.

In a few moments, Ray's groping hand caught on a ring ornament on the radiator.

Beneath Car
"When that happened," he related, "I realized that the car was upside down and that I was underneath it. If I had kept digging the way I started, I would have dug my own grave."

Ray inched his way from the car and continued tunneling upward at a feverish pace. His hands were bleeding freely from cuts and he was unaware of that, or any pain.

After what seemed like eternities, his hands broke free of snow, and, "I just thanked God."

Realized Weakness
But he was till a long way from safety. The debris of the slide had obliterated the highway and all markers. He suddenly became aware of his injuries, and the loss of blood from the cuts on his hands, legs and head made him weak.

He stumbled over the snow mass and by chance came upon a highway shelter house a quarter mile from the scene of the slide. No one was in sight, but a highway truck was parked outsidethe building.

Ray estimates that is was now about 3:30 a.m.—two or three hours after the accident.

Uses Elbows
The temperature of 15 degrees below zero had left his hands and fingers numb and useless. He managed to open the door of the truck cab and flip on the ignition by the use of his elbows. He used his teeth to pull out the headlight switch.

Pat Murray, operator of a state highway snowplow saw the lights and went to investigate.

The highway workman took Ray into the shelter house and then cleared a path through the slide to drive the injured man to medical help at Georgetown, 20 miles away.

The wrecked car was recovered from the snow weeks later.

Marine Takes the Dare; Wears His Dress Outfit

KOREA—First Division Marines, resting along a dusty Korean road found themselves open-mouthed in amazement as an automatic rifleman strolled through their midst clad in dress blues—the traditional Sunday garb of the Corps.

Marine Pfc. Norman L. Hoeker, 22 St. Joseph, Missouri, explained: "While I was in California I asked my mother to send me my dress blues. Before they arrived I was on my way to Korea. I received the package only the other day and, thinking it a Christmas package delayed in mailing, I opened it to share it with my buddies. They dared me to wear the suit and I did. I only hope the colonel didn't see me."

Homemade Freezer Serves Farm Needs
Farmers Turn to 'Build Your Own' Once More

With labor costs up and appliance growing scarce, many farmers are beginning to "build their own" once more. One example of what can be done with cinder blocks and insulation—plus a few spare hours of labor—is the homemade food freezer shown below.

The freezer is tucked away in a convenient corner of a farm home basement. It holds a side of beef and all the surplus cherries, strawberries and lima beans grown on the farm. Besides farm produce, this home-made appliance makes an ideal storage place for left-overs, ice cream and large quantities of special cuts of meat processed at a neighboring locker plant.

Like other freezers, however, it must be remembered that freezing does not improve the quality of the food stored in them. You get out of a freezer only what you put in. Also, farm wives are cautioned about correctly packaging freezer food. Included among acceptable packaging materials are moisture-proof vegetable parchment paper, moisture-proof cellophane (which can be heat-sealed), aluminum foil, cellophane-lined containers, freezers bags and approved cartons. The use of such materials are necessary regardless of whether freezers are purchased or are homemade.

Unless properly packed frozen foods may deteriorate.

The freezer, illustrated, is operated with a ¼ horsepower compressor. Rafters above the appliance are used for the storage of canned fruits.

Intestinal Disease Hits Numerous Swine Herds

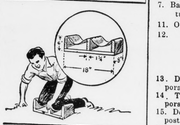
Thousands of pigs in major swine-producing states have been stricken with an intestinal disease regarded as the most serious of its kind ever seen in the U.S.

The American veterinary medical association reported that transmissible gastroenteritis has wiped out the entire pig crop on some farms. No swine-raising farm can consider itself completely safe from the disease, the AVMA warned.

Symptoms are severe scouring, vomiting, and dehydration. There is rapid loss of flesh in spite of the fact that affected pigs continue to nurse until they die.

At present no drug can be recommended as a standard treatment for this infection. Only possible means of control is to keep healthy breeding stock and healthy litters completely out of contact with sick animals and away from houses and grounds where outbreaks have occurred.

Gardener Knee Rest



This knee rest will take the strain out of gardening when weeding or performing some similar operation where it's necessary to work on your knees. The base is large enough so that it won't sink into soft ground. The edges of the three vertical pieces should be rounded. Sufficient slack is left in the canvas cover to provide comfortable rests for the knees.

Side-Dressing Corn Crop With Nitrogen Pays Off

Prof. C. J. Chapman, University of Wisconsin extension agronomist, reports that side-dressing corn with nitrogen fertilizer in late June, paid off in an extra 4½ tons of corn silage per acre on one Dane county farm last year.

He says the amount of nitrogen to apply depends on the soil's fertility level. He recommends at least 40 pounds per acre. Under some conditions this could be increased.

Normal Baby Is Born To 24 Inch Circus Woman

LOUISIANA, Mo — Lavandra Evans, 24 inch circus woman, gave birth here to a three-pound, twelve-ounce baby, said by doctors to be "normal in every respect."

The birth occurred at the Mineral Spring osteopathic hospital in a caesarean section performed by Dr. George L. Bilyea, an osteopath.

The infant, a boy, was premature.

Mrs. Evans' husband, Alva, is a dwarf of 4 feet 2 inches.

The physician reported that the infant arrived "in a favorable condition."

Vanishing American

A bit of enchantment has fled the streets of American cities. The sight and sound of it made children dance and lifted the hearts of their elders. It was spring itself, that trio of organ grinder, barrel organ and "monk," notes the National Geographic Society. Yet today the great city of New York is reported to have but one organ grinder left, a man of 75 years slowly cranking out the tunes of yesteryear. The tinkling voice of his barrel organ is barely heard midst the whir of motors with strident horns, the blare of countless radios, television sets and record players. Things are very different 20-odd years ago . . . The Barrel organ—or hurdy gurdy, as it is often called—was the rage of New York in the late, gay 1920's. While an estimated 300 professional Italian grinders strode the streets, rich and famous amateurs cranked away on their own "machines" set up in fashionable drawing rooms.

Labor Bureau cites the shortage of manpower.

Latest reports from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service indicate that the waterfowl breeding conditions were favorable this spring in the central Canadian breeding grounds. If satisfactory conditions continue to prevail, prospects should be bright for a bountiful waterfowl crop, and some better shooting is expected along the Atlantic flyway and even better shooting along the Mississippi flyway, this fall.

The only dark picture being reported, according to information from Dr. Frederick C. Lincoln, assistant director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, is that some 10,000 square miles of breeding range in Alberta was hard hit by a severe snowstorm early in June. To what extent the nesting waterfowl were prevented from bringing off their young, of course, remains to be seen. Some deleterious effects on the flyway populations are bound to have occurred. Most of the breeding birds in this area, however, follow the central and Pacific flyways, although a few come more eastward.

Truck Patch Reserves Called to Active Duty

The U.S. department of agriculture is encouraging Americans to plant "liberty" gardens as a part of the national and civil defense program.

Officially called the "Garden and Food Preservation Program," the campaign puts it up to citizens in 1951 to carry on horticulturally in the best traditions of World War II's victory gardens and the war gardens of 1917-18.

In 1917 it was estimated that the nation's back yard and vacant lot gardeners harvested crops valued at some $350,000,000. It was a record for the time, but easily broken by the victory sowers of the last war. In 1943 some 20 million vegetable gardeners—an estimated six million more than in the prewar year of 1941 — produced about eight million tons of food, enough to fill 160,000 freight cars.

The agriculture department pointed out that fresh home-grown vegetables improve the nation's diet, benefiting both health and morale, and — no mean consideration in these times — cut down the cost of living.

SPENCER Rexall DRUGS
7 GOOD HEALTH TO ALL FROM REXALL ®

Just imagine going to your own frozen food locker . . . and taking out tender T-bone steaks, pure hamburger for the kiddies, frozen peas from last summer's garden, corn-on-the-cob, fresh strawberries for shortcake.

A locker holds over 200 pounds of food all ready for you to take and use . . . there's no paying high retail prices for meat, no waiting to be served, no going from store to store.

It's the modern way to live. You buy meat at wholesale from us and have it cut up to your own needs. Then we wrap it, quick-freeze it and place it in your locker. You can also buy fruits, vegetables, fish, and poultry at low quantity prices. Or if you raise your own foods, we'll process them and put them in your locker. Drop in now . . . there's a frozen food locker key available for you.
